PERMANENT READJUSTMENTS CAN NOT BE MADE EFFECTIVE WITHOUT CONSIDERATION OF WORLD AFFAIRS

—PRESIDENT HARDING

President Harding, in Personal Message Delivered To Congress, Issues Warning; Must Mind Social, Moral and Political Obligations, He Says

By J. BART CAMPBELL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Stressing the great and far reaching contribution wtich the American people must be prepared to make toward the economic and financial rehabilitation of a world still staggering under the disordered conditions bequeathed by war, President Harding voiced a solemn warning today in the message he delivered in person to congress that "no permanent readjustments can be effected without consideration of our inescapable relationship to world affairs in finance and trade."

"We should be unworthy of our best traditions if we were unmindful of social, moral and political conditions which are not of direct concern to us, but which do appeal to the human sympathies and the very becoming interest of a people blest with our national good fortune," the president said.

The president emphasized that "in the main the contribution of this republic to restore normalcy in the world must come through the initiative of the executive branch of the government, but the best intentions and most carefully considered purpose would fail utterly if the sanction and the co-operation of Congress were not cheerfully accorded."

For the first time in years, since the grim shadows of the world war first began to gather over the American people, Congress listened to a presidential message that was almost entirely devoted to the grave domestic issues confronting the American nation, and which skipped over, except in the most general way, the serious international questions facing the American people.

Features of Message

The high spots of the president's message were:

First—The imperative need of elastic and flexible tariff legislation which would enable the president. through the federal tariff commission, to meet effectively the changing trade and industrial conditions, not only in this country. but abroad.

Second—The urgent necessity of a "general policy of transportation of distributed industry and of highway construction to encourage the spread of our population and to restore the proper balance between city and country."

Third—The strong desire of the administration for further revenue revision and "renewed consideration of our tax program," despite the "inevitable divergence of opinion in seeking the reduction, amelioration and readjustment of the burdens of taxation."

Fourth—The expressed opposition of the administration to the abrogation of certain commercial treaties proposed by the Jones Merchant Marine act on the grounds that to denounce them would "involve us in a chaos of trade relationships and add indescribably to the confusion of the already disordered commercial world."

Merchant Marine Expansion

Fifth—The expansion of the American Merchant Marine under an administration plan to be later submitted to Congress which, while contemplating "no greater draft on the public treasury" than is provided by the Jones act, "will appeal to the pride and encourage the hope of all the American people," in American shipping flying the American flag.

Sixth—Early enactment of the foreign debt funding bill that the administration may be cloaked with ample authority to deal with the $11,000,000,000 foreign indebtedness to the United States which is now denied it and which is hindering readjustments among our debtors and accomplishing nothing for ourselves.

Seventh — Systematic encouragement of agriculture by the development of adequate distribution and marketing facilities for agricultural products and the adoption of "co-operative marketing programs for that purpose."

Eighth—The early termination of a "great volume of uneconomic and wasteful transportation" and a revision of "the existing scheme of adjusting freight rates" with adequate legislation to meet the serious railroad problems so vitally affecting the welfare of the American people.

Ninth—Recommended a congressional appropriation to purchase food for the starving Russians.

Tenth—Suggested the advisability of a constitutional amendment to prohibit the issuance of tax-free securities.

Eleventh—Declared both corporations and labor unions should be regulated and supervised in the interests of public welfare and suggested quasi-judicial tribunals to settle labor disputes.

C. E. Hutchinson Family in Accident; Daughter Is Injured

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson of 246 North Orange street and family were in what might have proven to be a serious automobile accident in Los Angeles about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and which resulted in the occupants of the Hutchinson machine being badly shaken up and Gertrude Hutchinson, their daughter, receiving cuts and bruises about the head.

The accident happened at North Broadway and Avenue 20. The Hutchinsons were awaiting their turn to cross the street, when a machine from the rear tried to "cut in" on them, catching in the front wheel of their automobile and turning it around.

The machine was quite badly damaged, but with the exception of Gertrude Hutchinson, who was taken to the Receiving Hospital for treatment, the occupants of the Hutchinson machine were uninjured, other than receiving quite a shock. The automobile was not insured. The party driving the other machine is in the employ of an adding machine company and has agreed to settle for damages.

Lusby Building on West Broadway Sold to J. C. Pollock

J. C. Pollock, who has the Oldsmobile agency at 208-210 West Broadway has purchased Dr. Charles R. Lusby's building at 212-214 West Broadway which adjoins the building now occupied by Mr. Pollock. The building is a one-story brick structure now used as a garage by Barton Brothers, who state they will continue at the location until the expiration of the lease. In speaking of his purchase Mr. Pollock said:

"I believe in this part of Glendale, and I thought it best to make the purchase while the opportunity was still good. West Broadway will soon be built solid on both sides from Brand boulevard to Central avenue. I am as yet undecided just what I will do, but think I'll lease the building either as an auto agency or a hardware store."

CENTRAL P.-T. A. MEETING

The members of the Central Avenue Parent-Teacher association, of which Mrs. C. H. Crawford is president, will meet at the school building Thursday afternoon, at 3:15 o'clock. There will be vocal selections by Miss Marie Oliver. A round table talk on "Nutritious Food for Children" will be led by Mrs. Nesselrod.

J. J. BRESNAHANS AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bresnahan of Needles have returned to their home after an enjoyable week-end visit at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J .H. Webster, 1020 South Central avenue.

ANNEX EAGLE ROCK TO GLENDALE, IS BEING PROPOSED

Strong Movement Under Way in Neighboring City, So Mrs. M. L. Tight Hears

Eagle Rock as a part of Glendale was the idea which crystallized at iast night's mass meeting held in the high school auditorium to discuss the advisability of selecting a site in the eastern or western section of this city.

Mrs. M. L. Tight, pioneer real estate dealer here, declared there was a strong movement in Eagle Rock favorable to the annexation of that city to Glendale. Anthony Ambrosini jocularly suggested that at the rate Glendale was growing it would not be long until Los Angeles would want to be annexed, too.

Musical selections by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wells, 462 West Burchett street, featured the meeting. They formerly were with the Apollo Concert compaany and have given recitals all over the country. Last night Mr. Wells played the banjo accompanied by his wife at the piano. Mrs. Wells also interpreted several pianologues. They were most generous with their encores.

Discuss Grey Property

O. M. Newby, president of the organization, acted as chairman and announced that the purpose of the meeting was to discuss informally the Grey property at Doran street and Kennilworth road as a high school site.

W. B. Kelly of Kelly & Van Arsdol, 300 South Brand boulevard, quoted comparative distances to the Grey site and to the Luken's site at the corner of Broadway and Verdugo road. He called attention to the fact that it is 2.9 miles from the northwest boundary of the city to the Grey property and 5.4 miles to Luken's property.

"If the state law is correct all the children in the high school district who live beyond a two-mile radius are entitled to have their transportation paid by the school board," stated Mr. Kelly. "That will mean a heavy burden on the taxpayers in the next few years for there will be hundreds of children in the northwest section of the city.

Visualization of Future

"I believe the majority of citizens of Glendale are broadminded. They can see just what conditions are going to arise in the future. There are 2500 acres subdivided or about to be subdivided in that northwest territory. The majority of applications for gas and water meters come from that section. This means that

Mrs. C. L. Carter's Sunland House Is Demolished by Wind

Mrs. C. L. Carter of 1011 East Lomita avenue was the recipient of a most peculiar surprise on Sunday afternoon when she motored to Sunland to inspect the property which she purchased last week. Upon calling on the former owner of the property to ask for the key to her prospective home she was told, "You don't need a key."

The meaning of the statement was made clear a few minutes later when Mrs. Carter was taken to the half acre lot and shown where her house "used to be." Saturday's wind storm had completely wrecked the unprotected wooden structure, blowing it to the ground. The damage amounted to several hundred dollars.

Ralphs Property at Broadway and Orange Has Not Been Sold

Walter W. Ralphs of the Ralphs Grocery Company, Inc., of Los Angeles, which is building at the northwest corner of Broadway and Orange street, states that their property has not been sold, but there has been some confusion regarding the deal for the 68-feet frontage on Broadway formerly owned by J. G. Huntley. J. B. Sherwood held an option on the latter and it was sold to Elmer L. Ralphs, Edwards & Wildey and D. J. Hanna, all of the parties being interested in frontage on that block.

DATE OF HIGH SCHOOL $85,000 BOND ELECTION SET FOR DECEMBER 29

DECEMBER 29 is the date set for the $85,000 Glendale Union High School site bond election and in today's edition of The Glendale Evening News will be found the official call with the list of bonds to be sold, precinct boundaries and election officials. A straw vote on two sites will be polled at the same time.

Local Elks' Lodge Invaded by Large Redondo Delegation

One of the largest attended meetings of Glendale lodge of Elks No. 1289, of which Alfred Priest is exalted ruler, was held last night, when Lewis Fields, exalted ruler of Redondo Beach lodge, accompanied by other officers and the band and drill team and about 150 members of the beach lodge, paid the local Elks a visit, bringing the total attendance over 700, including about sixty other visitors from lodges all over the United States.

The initiatory work for a class of five candidates was put on by the officers of Redondo Beach lodge, after which there was a program by professional entertainers, and music by the band and orchestra. The beach lodge celebrated its second anniversary yesterday, which fact added to the evening's pleasure. Lunch was then served in the banquet room.

Announcement was made at last night's meeting by the entertainment committee, of which Joe Bellue is chairman, of the New Year's Eve dance. This will be in the nature of a dinner-dance, reservations for which will be made through the secretary's office. There will be two orchestras, one in the banquet room and one in the ball room. In order to accommodate all who care to attend, dinner will be served from 7:30 until 8:30 o'clock and from 9 o'clock until 10:30 o'clock.

S. L. Roland Now Has Arm in Splint; Big Wind to Blame

S. L. Roland, manager of the Southern California Metropolitan Loan association, which maintains its office in Glendale at 113 West Broadway, is going around town this week with his left arm in splints.

It was self-evident that a "flivver" had not kicked him and inquiry led to the disclosure that the high winds of the last few days were responsible.

This investment man lives in one of the stately homes gracing Canada boulevard in Verdugo Woodlands. The stiff breeze was blowing a sapling on his property out of alignment so he went out with a broad ax, stake and rope to do a little rescue work.

Of course, it was the old occurrence of the ax slipping, his hand getting hit instead of the stake, and the doctor to pay.

"Good thing it wasn't my right hand or I couldn't take in money for more Glendale loans," soliloquizes Mr. Roland.

Glendale Avenue Improvement Club Will Meet Friday

The Glendale Avenue Improvement association—with a whole kit full of happy prospects to consider—will hold a meeting at 8 o'clock Friday night in the council chamber of the city hall, according to an announcement made today by Attorney Harry C. Levey, president of the organization.

It is the latter's request that all circulators of petitions for improvements bring in these papers in order that they may be filed with the city council at an early date. Some of the subjects which may be considered include the high school site, the electrification of the Salt Lake branch line and similar traffic and building plans.

LEAVES FOR SOUTH SEAS

E. J. Zerr, son of Mrs. Frank Zerr of 309 North Cedar street, left Sunday on his second trip to the South Sea Islands. He went as camera man for Henry Otto, moving picture director. Mr. Zerr left on a similar expedition aboard the "Wisdom II" about a year ago.

DUSTY, AGE-YELLOWED RECORDS GIVE FORTH INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT EARLY SCHOOLS IN COUNTY

Average Daily Attendance in Los Angeles City in Year 1870 was 360; Very Small Pay Given to Teachers; First Institute Organized

By ART SHERBORNE

"LOS ANGELES is far behind her sister cities of the same population and wealth in educational interests. Her school buildings are illy constructed, incommodious, inconveniently located and conducted on a sort of guerilla system."

The speaker was a school official by the name of McFadden. His initials are unknown because his name is not listed in the city directory of Los Angeles. Maybe he had to take a stage coach out of town before the next census. Anyhow, he made that statement in 1870.

"Out of 1870 children between the ages if 5 and 15 years of age," he continued, "only 1200 are enrolled in either public or private schools. The average daily attendance in the public schools is only 360."

And Glendale now has more than a thousand children in public schools this term than there were in the whole city of Los Angeles in 1870—only fifty-one years ago!

The first school in Los Angeles county, of which there is any record, was conducted in the fall of 1817 and the spring of 1818 by Maximo Pino, an invalid soldier. For teaching a small class in a pueblo he was given $140 a year. California was then Spanish territory.

The first school under Mexican regime was conducted at varying intervals between 1827 and 1831 by Luciano Valdez who was paid $15 a month by the common council of the vicinity. He was succeeded by Vicente Morago, Francisco Pantajo, Cristoval Aguilar and Enriqui Sepulveda, after whom the former San Fernando Valley School District was named.

Find Fault with Pay

Most of these school "masters" found fault with the pay and after considerable discussion in each case the common council usually concluded that the services were not worth more and a gentle suggestion was dropped that more congenial work might be secured plastering adobe homes or riding bronchos.

Anyhow, Vicente Morago, who had been promoted to other civic duties, returned to the office of school master in 1835. As a historian remarks, "He was satisfied with $15 a month and that seemed to be the chief qualification for a teacher in those days."

Civil war raged between Los Angeles during 1836 and 1837 and there was no time for education as all the big boys were needed for soldiers.

"Less of licin' and more of larnin' " was introduced into a school opened in 1838 by Don Ynacio Coronel. He was paid $15 a month from the municipal funds, every parent having children was required to pay a certain amount according to his means. The length of the school's session until 1844, therefore, depended upon the condition of the municipal funds and the liberality of the parents.

First Woman Teacher

The first woman to teach school in this county was Senorita Soledad Coronel, daughter of the school master. She managed to liven things up in the class room by rewarding good lessons with an improvised dance by the children while she played the harp. She was the first teacher in this part of the country to introduce music into the school system.

Primary school was opened in Los Angeles January 3, 1844, under the tutorship of Ensign Guadalupe Medina, an officer of Governor Micheltorena's army. It is reported that he was an educated man and taught an excellent school under the Lancasterian plan where the instructor taught the advanced pupils and they taught the next lower grade and so on down the line. In this manner he was able to teach 103 youngsters at once.

After a very successful school term of nearly half a year, this Mexican "Lieut" was ordered to Monterey to aid in suppressing a revolution. When he returned, Los Angeles was involved in another periodical revolution and the schoolhouse was needed for military headquarters. The pupils were given a vacation which lasted for five years and when school resumed again the American flag floated from the Plaza, which was then the center of population.

Gradually Increasing

An ex-soldier, Francisco Bustamente, taught school in 1850 from June until the close of the year. He was given the princely sum of $60 a

UNION HIGH SCHOOL MECHANICAL ARTS PROVE POPULAR

Building Soon Outgrown and Many Students Unable to Take Courses Desired

By ARTHUR R. OLIVER

When in 1915 we were permitted to occupy the Mechanical Arts building it looked as if we should have ample room for many years, but three years were sufficient to convince us this building would be overcrowded long before 1921 and it has proven to be true. Many students who desired admission to the courses in these departments were refused through lack of accommodation.

With the slight knowledge you perhaps have of this building, its equipment and course, the question arises, and naturally enough, well, what are they doing there? It is of that I shall endeavor to convey to you through the medium of this article. Perhaps it will be interesting for you to learn something of what is taught in the mechanical drawing course. The introduction of advanced manual training called for a new interpretation in the function of drawing and I believe there has been a mild revolution in the methods of teaching art. Drawing is one of our greatest means of expression, and industrial art has aken the place of much of the thoughtless and useless copying of classic abstractions.

Interesting Evolution

Mechanical drawing, like art and freehand drawiing, has had a most interesting evolution, from the mere thoughtless copying of details which holds little value beyond the practice gained in handling of drawing instruments. The mechanical drawing course has so developed that it now combines several distinct functions. First, it furnishes the training in using drawing instruments; second, it gives to the student the interpretative knowledge so necessary in making and applying constructional

Deal for Ten Acres for Lumber Yard Is About Complete

The Coast Lumber company of Los Angeles has bought ten acres of land on South San Fernando road east of Brand boulevard and expects to utilize it as a site for a new lumber yard and allied manufacturing plants, according to report.

The papers for the deal are now in escrow at the Glendale National Bank. The consideration for the property was nearly $30,000, it is stated.

It is understood that the company is financed by San Francisco money and managed by Los Angeles energy. Its main plant will be located here. It is reported that building operations will be started shortly after the first of the year, or as soon as a switch track has been connected so that materials may be brought to the site.

Programs to Be Given Behalf Education Week

Simultaneous programs will be given tonight in the auditorium of both the Intermediate school and the Union high school in observance of American Education Week.

Five Hi-Y Groups Meet, Hear Talks About Education

The five Hi-Y groups of which Dale Wood is president, met last night at the First Methodist church and observed their "Educational" evening. The speakers for the evening were A. R. Eastman and Howard Butterfield, whose topics were "Sticking to School" and "The Value of Education."

Mr. Eastman, in his talk, told of his experiences in employing men, and how they were first asked the amount of education they had had. He stated that usually a man's ambitions and his future success were gauged by the amount of education he had had. Mr. Eastman also told of a number of personal experiences with men who have made good because they trained their minds to grasp a situation and diagnose it and act quickly.

Mr. Butterfield spoke of the competition now between trained and untrained minds. He told mainly of how, if boys had the determination to get an education, that there were many ways open to them, and that finances should not keep boys from going to college. Both speakers invited the boys to call on them at any time and talk to them about their future plans.

Plans were discussed for the supper and reception to be given by the Hi-Y boys Thursday night in honor of Harry Rimmer, well-known athlete, who will speak to the boys at that time.

Mrs. Chester Kling Entertains Members of Club's Section

The members of the Shakespeare section of the Tuesday Afternoon club met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chester Kling, 720 South Maryland avenue. In the absence of Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, curator, the meeting was in charge of Mrs. O. E. Von Oven. The reading of the third act of "Richard II" was completed and the fourth act begun. Mrs. J. E. Lyon gave an interesting talk on "Authors of the Age."

At the close of the afternoon the hostess served refreshments. There were about fifteen section members present. The next meeting will be held in January. There will not be another meeting in December on account of the holidays.

Miss Zelma Lindley, Bride-Elect, Guest at Kitchen Shower

Miss Zelma Lindley, daughter of Arthur G. Lindley, was the guest of honor at a kitchen shower given last night at the home of Mrs. Emma Reed, 219 East Harvard street. Miss Lindley is to become the bride of Doris C. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Smith of Glendale, some time in January. Decorations of poinsettias were used throughout the house, this same floral motif being carried out in the place cards and other table decorations.

Games and guessing contests provided diversion for the evening. In one object guessing contest, in which the guests were blindfolded, when it came Miss Lindley's turn, she was led in the direction of a chair, and when the blindfold was removed she found grouped around the chair numerous packages, each containing a kitchen utensil and a bit of poetry written about it. At the close of the evening refreshments were served.

The guests included Miss Zelma Lindley, Doris Smith, Mr. and Mrs. G. Smith, Mrs. Elizabeth Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns, Mrs. J. Peebles, James Watson, Miss Evelyn Peebles, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Leeds, Mrs. Frieda McAdams of Los Angeles, Ernest Reed, Miss Stanton, Floyd Reed and the hostess, Mrs. Emma Reed.

HOME ECONOMICS IN ELEMENTARY WORK HELP TO VISION

Broader Outlook Is Obtained Through Courses; Welfare Physical and Mental

By LULU M. WOOLDRIDGE
Supervisor of Household Arts, Glendale Elementary Schools

Our aim in teaching home economics in the grades is to give the child a simple, practical course, having a sequence from one related problem to another, keeping always in mind the welfare of the home. We do place great emphasis on proper manipulation of utensils and an absolute necessity for neatness, accuracy and order, but the scientific side is not forgotten.

Our main thought is breadth of vision—home making means more than cooking a few dishes or the mastery of a number of stitches. (Our purpose is not to turn out professional cooks or dressmakers). We strive to give the child a knowledge of the material things about her and to stimulate her interest, but under all we keep in mind the welfare of the home.

We like to think of Mrs. Richards' message to the women of America, "Control the material things which lie about you, and make natural and social forces do your bidding, in order that you may have time and energy to make life beautiful and gracious and worth while."

During the world war, feeding and clothing was studied as never before in our history. All of us learned many valuable lessons. One of them should be the importance of training our boys and girls in that science, and art, which, since the world began, has been the basis for all other sciences and all other arts.

Short Unit Courses

All our work is based upon short unit courses of one term. Our sewing starts in the B5th grade. One hour a week is the time allowed. Here the child is taught the handling of tools and materials necessary in sewing and in so doing gains muscular control. Coarse materials and large stitches are used at first to accomplish the result. After the child has gained sufficient muscular control, finer stitches, and the making of seams are taught, then something of the fabrics used, a study of cotton materials especially.

In the sixth grade the work is continued, the time allowed, one hour and twenty minutes each week. The girls learn to mend and take care of their clothing. They learn to use the sewing machine, and to make simple garments for themselves.

In the seventh grade two periods a week of one hour and twenty minutes is allowed. The girls learn the care of the machines, cleaning, oiling, etc., and the various seams used.

Textile work is taken up in the form of a discussion as to materials suitable for each garment made, in regard to durability, suitability, laundering, etc. Plain garments for general wear are made. The girls learn to use commercial patterns, and to determine amounts required for each garment, also costs of the materials. The care of the clothing is emphasized.

Before making wash dresses, materials, costs, durability, trimmings, color harmony, and shrinkage are studied.

House problems are worked out in sewing in each grade by making something for the home.

List of Chosen Topics

Our cookery classes start in the eighth grade. Two periods a week are allowed of one hour and twenty minutes each. Here a course in the study of foods is given with practical lessons in plain cookery. The topics selected are as follows:

1. Function of foods.
2. Study of heat, water.
3. Study of fruits and vegetables.
4. Study of milk and its care.
5. Study of starches and cereals.
6. Housekeeping, order, neatness.
7. How to plan and serve a well-balanced breakfast.
8. Study of leavening agents and use in batters and doughs.
9. Study of food classes with emphasis on body builders, heat and energy foods and food regulators.
10. Study of protein foods. (a) study of meats; (b) study of meat substitutes.
11. Study of yeast bread and flour.
12. A simple luncheon.
13. Housekeeping. Care of dining room. Table setting.
14. Serving well-balanced meals.
15. Housekeeping, removal of stains.
16. Diet of family.

In fine, we try to teach the child the preparation, care and uses of food as related to the physical well-being, mental well-being, welfare of the home and community.

College Girls Will Make Society Better

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Through the influence of the college girl a change for the better will be brought about in the character of society, in the opinion of President Henry Noble MacCracken, of Vassar, who has been addressing alumnae meetings in Chicago. The college girl, according to Dr. MacCracken, will not be content with perpetual frivolity.

"Too much frivolity bores the college girl," said Dr. MacCracken. "She will not tolerate the unwholesome things in society life. And because she has been trained to be a leader she will do away with them."

Dr. MacCracken said the college girl will substitute pleasure and culture for frivolity and speed.

"If girls are to be happy," he declared, "they must have something more to think about than style."

DEADLOCK BREAKING AT ARMS PARLEY; NEW PROGRESS

Plenary Session to Be Held Wednesday or Thursday, Is Correspondent's Belief

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
Written for International News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6.—The fog of pessimism which has hung over the work of the Washington conference for some days because of Japan's opposition to accepting the Hughes naval program, and Chinese dissatisfaction with the trend of far eastern events, began to lift slightly today and there were indications that the pace of the conference is soon to be accelerated.

Japan's antagonism to the 5-5-3 ratio of capital ships is beginning to crack. The naval experts and technicians from Tokio are still adamant in their opposition to the Hughes figures, but positive assurances were forthcoming today that the diplomatic strategists from Tokio are beginning to "see the light."

According to the best informed authorities the "deadlock" which has impeded the progress of the conference toward a naval agreement can be expected to last several days more and Japan's acceptance of the inevitable 5-5-3 program can be looked for by the middle of next week.

Plenary Session This Week

It is likely that a plenary session will be arranged by this Wednesday or Thursday. This will provide an opportunity for Japan to announce her decision publicly and at the same time to justify her course in delaying so long the acceptance that was forthcoming at once from her principal ally, Great Britain.

Progress in far eastern affairs, while slow, is such as to make officials of this government decidedly optimistic. China and Japan are fully launched into the job of adjusting the dangerous Shantung issue and Chinese opposition to private negotiation with Japan has been overcome by the presence of two American and two British experts, who are to attend all the sessions in the role of umpires.

Heavy Shipments of Lumber Are Received for Buildings Here

There is plenty of business at the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber company, 460 West Los Feliz Road, according to George Bentley. He called attention yesterday afternoon to the fact that twelve cars of lumber are now on the track and thirty more are expected this week, making 600,000 feet of lumber.

This is from the pine forests of Oregon. It came down by boat and was brought by rail from Port Los Angeles. It will be used in the construction of California bungalows in the vicinity. Mr. Bentley estimates that there is only enough lumber here to last thirty days. He calculates that there was enough lumber in the shipment to build about sixty average five-room bungalows. He said enough lumber for two or three of these a day has been sold by this firm lately.

No slump in building activity is looked for by Mr. Bentley. He called attention to the fact that this is supposed to be the busiest portion of the year on account of the anticipated arrival of winter tourists.

W. GRIFFIN IS ORGANIZING

W. Griffin, plumber, with store and shop at 806 South San Fernando road, is contemplating the organization of an improvement association for the section of the city in which his business is located. He believes that more stores there would prosper. San Fernando road, Windsor road, Pacific avenue and Riverdale drive practically converge within a block, giving business houses the advantage of much traffic.

LOOKS GOOD FOR XMAS

"The new place is going to be fine," declared C. L. Brenkman, yesterday afternoon, commenting upon the removal of his store from 1510 to 1524 South San Fernando Road. "Things look fine for Christmas. I have a whole raft of stuff laid away that people have made deposits on."

OPEN FOR HOLIDAY TRADE

"We will be open Wednesday and Saturday nights now until Christmas," remarked L. W. Russell of the Russell Furniture company, 1529 South San Fernando Road, yesterday afternoon. "Christmas orders are coming along fine. Quite a few deposits have been made already."

THAT DOORWAY FINISHED

The promised doorway has at last been cut through the west wall of the George V. Black Pharmacy on the southeast corner of San Fernando and Los Feliz Roads and, according to Ralph H. Duncan, "The public is cordially invited to come in that way if it so desires."

SAYS BUSINESS IS FINE

"Business is good," remarked D. B. Trowbridge of the Glendale Carpet & Mattress Works, 1411 South San Fernando Road, yesterday afternoon. "We have all the work we can do at present."

BUILDING STILL GOES ON

"Building seems to keep on just the same as ever," declared C. S. Jordan of the Glendale Sash & Door House, 1422 South San Fernando Road, yesterday afternoon. "Building activities don't show any signs of slowing up."

Mr. Jordan is of the opinion that most of the construction work is north of South San Fernando Road although he admitted that there was quite a bit to the south, too.

MORE ROOM FOR DISPLAYS

"Sky-scraper counters" are now being constructed by B. V. Brasher for the tables in his establishment at 1413 South San Fernando Road, The South Glendale Variety Store. This means that he is putting an upper deck on his counters so that he will have more room to display his wares.

RECOVERING FROM ILLNESS

C. M. Meech of the Tropico garage, 410 West Los Feliz Road, says that his two boys, Charles and Robert, and his niece, Verda Magrell, are now recovering nicely from diphtheria at his home, 816 South Glendale avenue. He has been forbidden to enter the sick room for some time.

WIND CAN'T REMOVE IT

"The wind can't blow the kind of paint I sell off the houses," declared T. B. Revis, 1530 South San Fernando Road, yesterday, with a laugh. "Such storms as we have had lately don't phase the quality of the paints I carry at all."

FIRM GIVEN RUSH ORDER

A rush order from the city for fifty specially made, fire proof, galvanized sheet metal meter boxes are now being completed by Theilen & Yaeger, 1418 South San Fernando Road.

A. J. SAUER IS VISITOR

A. J. Sauer, who recently arrived from Yakima and is spending a few weeks with his sister, Mrs. George M. Stull, 1420 South San Fernando Road, spent Sunday at Long Beach.

NEW STORE TO BE OPENED

Southern Glendale is to have a haberdashery and dry goods store. G. W. Cox of Los Angeles has taken a three-year lease upon the large store room at 1510 South San Fernando Road formerly occupied by E. L. Brenkman and announced yesterday that it would be open the first of the year with a full line of gent's furnishings and a general line of dry goods and notions.

To prove that he has come into the territory to stay, Mr. Cox has taken over the lease from G. L. McLean on the nearby DeLuxe apartments, on the northwest corner of San Fernando Road and Central avenue, and will live there.

FROM OMAHA TO GLENDALE

Eight days from Omaha to Glendale by auto is the record of O. H. Watkins, who arrived a few days ago with his son Roy and spent the week-end with his sisters, Mrs. Ella Baldwin and Mrs. C. A. Richardson, 1517 South San Fernando Road. Other members of his family are coming from Iowa by rail. They expect to spend the winter in Long Beach.

THURSDAY CLUB TO MEET

The Thursday Afternoon club, of which Mrs. E. V. Bacon is president, will hold a business meeting at the Branch Library building at Los Feliz and Brand boulevards Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Among the business to be taken up at that time will be the report of the committee in charge of the chicken supper given recently by that organization in the K. of P. hall.

SOUTH GLENDALE NOTES

H. M. Bradbury of the Glendale Carpet & Mattress Works, 1411 South San Fernando Road, was in Los Angeles yesterday on business.

George M. Stull, 1420 South San Fernando Road, went to Long Beach today to accumulate some bargains in used furniture.

E. R. Best, 1317 South Central avenue, has been suffering from a severe cold lately.

PLAN FOR FATHERS' NIGHT

The Mothers' Club of the Acacia Street School P.-T. A., of which Mrs. William Alexander is president, will hold its "fathers' night" entertainment Thursday night, December 8, at the K. of P. hall on South Brand boulevard.

USED AS VARNISH ROOM

The cabinet shop of F. B. Reichenbach & Son, 421 West Los Feliz Road, is now using a portion of the two-story frame dwelling used at one time as a school for Japanese children of the neighborhood, as a varnish room.

Cornell WoodBoard comes already Primed for painting

You will save the work and expense of a priming coat if you build your walls and ceilings of Cornell Panels instead of ordinary wallboard, plaster board or plaster. For Cornell comes "Mill-Primed." And no other wallboard has its fashionable "Oatmeal Finish" which has placed Cornell in highest favor with thousands of builders.

Cornell is rigid and fire-resisting, due to our "Triple-Sizing" process which gives this board triple the ordinary protection against moisture, expansion, contraction, sound and change in temperature.

Easily put up with hammer and nails right to the joists and studding or over damaged plaster. Costs no more than inferior boards; get quotations and sample from the Cornell Dealer shown below.

FORGE TRAINING OF MUCH IMPORTANCE FOR SHOP WORK

Valuable Information Secured by Students; Education in Art Very Necessary

By WILLIAM JUSTEMA, JR.

The forge. This course at the Glendale Union high school is primarily a prerequisite to machine shop and auto shop.

Students are not encouraged to become blacksmiths. However if a student desires to take up that line of work the course would give him much valuable information and practice which would lead to early advancement.

All projects are required to be exact in form and measurement. The student taking same from his shop card upon which is mounted a blue print.

This training of the eye and muscles to work metal to form and size, and the instruction in the reading of shop cards are excellent discipline for any line of trade or profession.

The aim of the course is to teach the student the properties of the different grades of iron and steel which he must work.

The important commercial art of case hardening is studied to a very limited degree and the student personally assists in case hardening his own work; the forged wrench being the usual article so treated.

Students who complete the regular course before the end of the term are given some instruction in the use of the oxyacetylene torch welding.

Not Enough Equipment

The number receiving this instruction is limited owing to the lack of equipment, only one torch being provided.

In the regular course the simple projects of drawing out, bending and forming soft iron are followed by the simple welds. Owing to the introduction of electric and oxyacetylene welding into commercial production, our course has been modified and the more difficult welds eliminated.

Welding of flat and round stock and its application to chain links and rings covers the required ground.

The simple projects are followed by the forging of hooks, bolts, wrenches, tongs and then the more important and interesting study of tool steel.

Since the course is outlined to prepare for the machine shop each student is required to forge, harden and temper a complete set of lathe cutting, turning, boring and threading tools.

Many thousand years ago there lived in a great jungle, a jungle of green vines and terrible animals, Man. Every day he crept through the reeking swamps killing so that he might eat. And every night he returned to his cave in the hillside and slept.

But soon he began to weary of the monotony; he began to realize that in his life there was something lacking. Day by day he slew the great hippopotamus, day by day he saw a red sun rise and crawl over high trees.

Oh for a way to tell of the splash the hippopotamus made in the cool lagoon, for a way to tell of the glory of the suns. . . .

First Example of Art

And then, one evening when he was cooking his meat in his cavern, he thought that he saw the figure of a wild animal, snorting and with tusks, traced on the wall. He had seen just such an animal and had chased it! Why couldn't he do so now? He ran for a sharp stone and chiseled three lines pursuing the beast. The three lines were Man.

That was the first example of art. It happened many thousands of years before the wireless and automobiles. It was man's first pleasure—and it is today the greatest pleasure of untold numbers.

This is a mechanical age, we know, but must Art be thrown aside? Visit Glendale Union high school and you will say "No." One hundred and seventy-five art students will say "No."

The cave-man needed Art. It it a monotonous experience without it. What would our homes be devoid of it, and what would our lives be?

Art is fundamental, and the department at G. U. H. S. has its capacity of students.

There Are Numerous Branches

Free-hand drawing comes first. In these classes are learned the mechanics and the technique of drawing. Perspective, proportion are explained — and understood. Still-life studies are arranged and interpreted in pencil and colors. Many of the boys draw parts of machinery and delve into architecture by sketching neighboring buildings.

Free-hand drawing is taken the first year. Miss Abbott, Miss Abel, and Miss Crandall are the instructors. After the first year, the students may go into one of the advanced courses: Design, pen and ink and poster, charcoal and pastel, or costume design. The design courses are taught by Miss Jeanette Abel. Form, line and color, the elements of design, are evolved into many charming pieces of block print, stencil, stick-print, tye-dye and batik. Individuality is developed here. The crafts, reed, basketry and pottery will be studied further along in the course.

"Catch their attention and hold it" says Miss Mary Beth Abbott, in guiding a class through the mysteries of poster-making. Lettering is first conquered—and then the use of color.

Miss Abbott has also a class of students under her, doing charcoal and pastel work. At present they are drawing casts, casts of faces and figures. Next, that exquisite medium of pastel will be used.

Costume design as taught by Miss Esther Crandall is most fascinating. Beginning with collars, the girls have designed blouses, skirts, dresses and suits. They are original designs sketched in water color. The class studies the various types of persons and costumes, and then appropriate and becoming designs are worked out for each.

Art education is a most valuable asset. It teaches appreciation of beautiful things and stimulates the power to produce them.

Public School Art; Some of Aims Are Briefly Told

BY JOSEPHINE CHAMBERS
Supervisor of Art Glendale City Schools

There is some of the artist in every one of us, or so we hope; for the person absolutely devoid of that finer sense that inspires the genius is to be pitied, and, if possible, that lack remedied. So, yes, we do teach imagination! In those who lack we try to develop it. In those who have a sufficient supply, we guide it. The very small children seem to have an inexhaustible supply, but, as they grow older, they often lose that inventiveness and imagination, but we are trying not to let that individualism be pinched into a few stereotyped ideas and forms. One of the greatest enjoyments of children is the power of creation, and when this creation is of their own imagination their sense of accomplishment is doubly great.

So, in this practical age when every drawing lesson is planned with a definite practical aim in view, we try not to crush that spirit of imagination, creativeness and inspiration.

Of course they cannot all be artists, and the course of study is not planned with that aim in view. But drawing and painting and the other lines of art are just as necessary for a well balanced general education as the other subjects. Art lessons require just as much concentration, clear thinking and exactness of execution as any other study.

So let us see just what we are trying to accomplish. At first it is just the training of the hand and at this stage we look for progress, not results. By the second grade the scribbling period is passed and a certain amount of dexterity is gained. The children can draw anything that is suggested; that is, in their own way. We must help them then to see things correctly and to put them down in an easy way. By the third and fourth grades the simplest ways of expressing things do not quite satisfy the children. They no longer want to draw a horse or a table with two legs when it really needs four. So a large amount of explanation is due and the results on paper look a trifle more real.

In the upper grades the field is unlimited. Problems in both representative drawing (realistic drawing from nature, objects and life), and in creative art (design) are attempted. In expressing ideals with pencil, crayola or brush, problems of practical worth are worked out. Phases dealing with color harmonies and color combinations, and problems in planning and decorating a home all help in every day life. Those especially interested are started along practical lines in advertising or poster work that might later develop into commercial art positions. In fact, there is not a single class of people that the power to use a brush or pencil skillfully would not benefit.

So, if we can teach the many a love and appreciation for the best in art, in harmony of color and beauty of form, they will have a gift from which they can derive enjoyment and relaxation throughout life. If we can give the few a start in the power of expressing their talent, and to all a skill with pencil or brush, then our efforts are rewarded.

MAY ABANDON TREATY

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Official admission that the Anglo-Japanese treaty of alliance may be abandoned in the future but only on condition that concessions are secured from America and that there is some form of understanding between America, Great Britain and Japan was made to the International News Service today. Foreign office officials denied that the treaty had already been abandoned. A report was current that there was an excellent chance of an understanding being reached at Washington which would enable both Britain and Japan to denounce the treaty.

AIMS, METHODS OF MANUAL TRAINING ARE EXPLAINED

Mind and Muscle Are Being Directed to Work for Efficiency, Results

By ALICE L. LOOKABAUGH

The elementary schools of Glendale include in their course of manual training the following subjects: In the first grade and up through the fourth, the children are taught handwork. Beginning with the fifth grade the boys go into the woodwork or sloyd as it is called. When they reach the eighth grade another course may be added which is mechanical drawing.

In the four lower grades the handwork consists of work in cardboard and paper construction, some weaving and some decorative work. The children are taught to make objects from dictation and observation. The children are taught to measure with a ruler, to draw straight lines, to fold, and to cut and paste. The first grade models are very simple, but nevertheless they mean a great deal to the child, for he is really learning to do things for himself. Such models as boats, picture frames, windmills, simple boxes and the like are taught to the small children. As the child steps up in school the number of processes is increased and the objects grow in size, construction, and usefulness.

Interest Is Increased

In going from the fourth to the fifth grade the interest in school is increased a great deal, for most every boy looks forward to the time when he can use "real" tools and make "real" things. Of course the boy is full of ideas and desires but he must be held down awhile and taught step by step the use of tools, different constructions, and the methods of procedure. The grammar schools, however, do not expect to turn out carpenters, but they do try to teach the boy how to plan and how to execute a plan, how to use tools, how to do simple repair work, something about wood, stains and paints, and to teach him or give him some idea of the outside world of construction.

When the subject was first introduced in the schools a boy was taught to make a certain number of models. They had no particular value other than to show the boy the different joints and constructions. Now he is taught to square up a board by making something which can be used as a bread board, key rack, game board and other such models. He is taught the different joints and fastenings in such models as book racks, letter holders, taborettes, footstools, tie racks and many small pieces of furniture. The boys are encouraged as much as possible under the crowded conditions which exist to use their own ability and initiative in planning and working out problems.

The mechanical drawing which is given in the elementary school is intended to develop in the boy if possible the power of visualization, the art of neatness and accuracy, and the ability to listen, to see, and to follow directions. Whether or not the boy intends to enter into business or trades where a knowledge of drawing is necessary there is a certain degree of mind and muscle training involved which he can get from no other subject.

It is the aim, then, through the whole manual training courses to train the mind and the muscle to work together for the best results possible and to keep the child interested in his school life, for then is the best work attained. Human progress is the chief aim of all and, as someone has said, "The mind, muscle, and material form the basic triangle upon which human progress is founded." Manual training involves skill in the use of each of these.

Value of Art Education to the Average Student

An art education does not aim to produce great artists. In fact, while a high school course does offer systematic training for those of natural talent, it is a very limited number who have real genius. The great value, then, of such a course lies in the development of sound judgment, in selecting color combinations, in a fine feeling for line, proportion, and fitness, all of which are employed when making the aesthetic decisions of everyday life. Most valuable of all to the student is the chance to develop his powers of appreciation. Here he learns to recognize the beautiful and to feel a keen and real appreciation for the works of others. The pleasure derived from such association cannot be overestimated.

A very practical value derived from this study is that the hand is taught to do what the head directs and to do it with precision and neatness. The students of today are soon to become the buyers and manufacturers of the nation. Unless we train designers, builders, craftsmen and producers of all kinds to make artistic and beautiful articles, unless we develop business men and women who recognize the things worth while and unless we produce an intelligent buying public, we cannot compete with other countries. Instead of making our own, we shall go on as we have done in the past, always depending on others to give us the really beautiful textile designs and other essentials to art. Proper training is all that we need and art education is indispensable to the welfare of the nation.

Lunch in Cafeteria; Good Things Are Served There

When you visit the high school this week plan to have your lunch in the cafeteria. Lunch is served during the fifth and sixth periods from 11:35 to 1:05 o'clock.

The sole object in operating this cafeteria is to provide wholesome and well cooked foods for the students at a minimum cost. It is under the direct management of Ellen J. Hanson of the Domestic Science Department. The accounts are taken care of by the Commercial Department, Mr. Fullen acting as auditor. Mrs. Frank Eiffler is in charge of the kitchen and is assisted by Mrs. E. C. Peet, Mrs. Ida Beattie and Mrs. Ward in the preparation of the food. The food is served by the students, twenty-five being employed during the two periods to give quick and efficient service. For this service they are given their lunch.

The menus are planned so that the students may choose a well balanced lunch or supplement the lunch brought from home. The dining room is a large pleasant room and is not only open to the students who buy their lunch, but also to those who bring their lunch from home.

For the boy who is in a hurry and does not want to come into the main dining room, a stand has been provided outside where he may purchase sandwiches, hamburger and wienie buns, milk, pie and ice cream.

Because of limited space in the main dining room a small dining room has been provided for the faculty.

The following is a typical menu: Vegetable soup, 5c; Spanish beans, 5c; hot roast beef sandwich, 12c; spinach, 5c; mashed potatoes and gravy, 5c; sandwiches, 5c; sweet potatoes, 5c; potato, fruit, combination and crispy salad, 8c; brown betty, 8c; fruit gelatin with whipped cream, 8c; cake, 8c; apple pie, cream pie, 8c; milk, 5c; ice cream, 5c.

With the exception of a few items the menu is changed every day.

Pluck loses no time on account of hard luck.

A Million Dollars in Sales for 1922

The F. A. Clarke Co. announces its sales quota for the year 1922 as $1,000,000. A high aim indeed, for a business that deals exclusively in Electrical Household Appliances—and yet a quota well within the reach of a Company capable of such progress as that which characterizes the F. A. Clarke Co.

In June, 1917, our first retail store was opened in Los Angeles. Mr. F. A. Clarke, the President and active manager of the present Company, contributed his already extensive knowledge and energetic personality to the progress of the Company—and his was a knowledge gained from years well spent in practical management of identical businesses. In July, 1919, a second retail store was opened in Los Angeles—immediately followed by the opening of completely equipped stores in the principal towns of Southern California. This brought to the Company the distinction of offering the most complete Electrical Household Appliance Service in the West!

This consistent, yet remarkable, growth of the F. A. Clarke Co. has demanded the construction of a new Central Headquarters consisting of a Retail Store, a Service Station and Main Offices for the Company. This building, located at 1200 West 8th Street, Los Angeles, is the first building in the United States erected to serve Electrical Household Appliance customers exclusively. The exceptionally favorable location of this Store assures its success; on one of the main thoroughfares to Hollywood and the Wilshire District—over 10,000 automobiles passing it daily!

The newest Retail Store, at 713 South Broadway, is located on the ground floor of the Loew's State Theatre Bldg., at the busiest corner in America, and offers other original and valuable features. The entire front window swings back into the store, giving an unequalled opportunity for window demonstration. This novel feature is the invention of Mr. Clarke and patent has been applied for.

Two factors are largely responsible for this consistent growth. The very policy of the business itself is one: "The complete satisfaction of every customer"! The other rests in the fact that Mr. Clarke, in his actual management of the business, has undeviatingly adhered to the carrying out of that policy! Such a policy, furthered by aggressive selling, brooks no failure!

We are soon to offer for public subscription, $110,000 worth of 8% preferred stock—to be sold at $95.00 per share, par value $100—with one-half share of common stock to be given with each share of preferred. Purchased at $95.00 per share this preferred stock will yield nearly 8½%.

Purpose of Financing

This public sale of preferred stock is being offered primarily to permit the F. A. Clarke Co. to finance its own deferred payments, created through the sale of appliances on a plan of partial payments. At the present time this important function is handled through an Eastern Financing Company. We propose, through this public sale of preferred stock to eliminate this expense of conducting our business, thereby greatly increasing our annual net profit.

The F. A. Clarke Co. is a going business, operating on a conservative basis throughout Southern California. Our organization is built around men of broad business experience and thoroughly trained in the electrical appliance field. This public subscription of preferred stock, about to be offered, affords a limited number of people the opportunity to share in the profits of a highly successful retail business.

Bear in mind that the possibilities of the F. A. Clarke Co. are unlimited—but not more than 1100 share-holders may participate in the purchase of this initial offering of preferred stock!

He received many gifts. The afternoon was spent in games and a toe dance by little Miss Marian Stadler was enjoyed. Refreshments, including a birthday cake, were served.

Roy Selover, Hill McGillis and Don Cowlin, all of this city, returned yesterday from a most successful three days' hunting trip to Big Bear and Baldwin lakes, where they bagged several limits of canvasbacks and mallards. The men report unusually cold weather at the famous resort, the temperature on Sunday hovering around zero mark all day. Propose to Annex Eagle Rock to This City, Is Reported the city of Glendale is growing that way. In the next five years we are going to have a population in Glendale of 50,000.

"The school ought to be placed in the direction in which the city is growing. Even if the Luken's site is purchased now, I don't believe it ever will be utilized. Those people who will vote the bonds will see their mistake. The city is growing to the northwest and nothing will stop it."

J. F. Chandler, 420 South Brand boulevard, said that more pupils had been added to the East Broadway school in the past two months than to any other school. He called attention to the fact that there are more than 200 acres of idle territory on the east side of Glendale which is being subdivided.

Suggestions Are Made

Mrs. W. A. Slater, 110 West Harvard street, declared that the question seemed to be whether or not Eagle Rock should be considered in the matter.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Botsford participated in the meeting. R. A. Elrod was on hand, also.

Alex Mitchell, 2001 Kenneth road, remarked:

"I have talked the Grey site until I am blue in the face. My advice is to get out and work. Work and votes count. Talking counts for nothing. Get out and organize. Appoint captains in each block. See that every voter casts his ballot. I believe that anything which is worth having is worth fighting for. Let us get out and work.

"There is no doubt but that we need a high school. I have all the time advised the purchase of two sites because real estate will never be as low as it is now."

Academy of Music Has Piano Recital by Smaller Pupils

The little piano pupils of Miss Elsa Breidt at the California Academy of Music, Lexington Drive and Brand boulevard, gave a very interesting recital Saturday afternoon at the Glendale studio, which was attended by the parents and friends of the little folks. The intense progress displayed after six weeks of instruction was the cause of much favorable comment among those who attended the recital.

Those who took part included Dorothy Levey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Levey; Fern Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Johnson; Evelyn Apffel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Apffel; Mildred Randolph, daughter of Mrs. Ina Randolph; Dorothy and Billy Godfrey, daughter and son of Mrs. Claudine Godfrey; Harmon Bunting, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bunting, and violin numbers by Billy Brower, son of Mrs. E. Brower.

The children each have two lessons a week. The first lesson is the piano lesson, which includes instruction in technique. The second lesson is to develop the mental side, and to give the children a clear understanding of what they are doing. Instruction is given in elementary harmony, ear training, sight reading and so forth. The recital Saturday afternoon illustrated both phases of the work and proved very enlightening to the grown-ups. At the close of the program refreshments were served.

The local studio is in charge of Miss Ruth T. Doolittle. Miss Elsa Breidt is in charge of the piano department; Miss Marjory Vorhes, assistant to Julius Vierlich, in charge of the violin, and Mrs. Virginia Freeman of the vocal department. Other branches of music are also included in the instruction given by the local studio of the California Academy of Music.

Nazimova Is Brilliant in 'Camille,' Showing at T. D. & L. Theatre

It is obvious why Nazimova is called "the incomparable." This brilliant actress' performance in "Camille," at the T. D. & L. theatre, where it is being shown, evinces such a mastery of technique and emotional quality as makes her deserve the epithet to perfection. Here she is at her best, and it is no exaggeration to say that in this picture she shows herself one of the greatest actresses of the screen.

In "Camille" Nazimova has done for the silver screen what Bernhardt, Eleanora Duse, Clara Morris, Olga Nethersole, and Ethel Barrymore did for the stage. These artists won fame for their interpretation of the role of "Camille." Nazimova, no less than they, has endowed the part with a charm and power.

Local picturegoers will not miss this picture. It is rarely that such a masterpiece is seen, seldom that a great drama and a great actress are united. And, after seeing the picture, one easily understands the statement that it is one of the finest love stories of all times, and that the play still thrills and delights, seventy years after being produced in Paris.

Nazimova has the role of Camille, the woman of the underworld whom the love of a law student lifts to heights of devotion and sacrifice, and who returns to her showy, pitiful life upon learning that her sweetheart has abandoned his career for her sake.

It is a poignant tragedy that will not fail to hold interest until the very end.

Mr. Kelley has received a number of requests for different talks by Mr. Rimmer and as yet the subject has not been chosen, but it is thought the address, "The Path to Success" will be given.

C. F. Braun Plant Will Be Located West of Glendale

After hearing how Los Angeles had located the C. F. Braun company a few miles north of the business center of that city and how Burbank had included the same location within its limits, John R. Grey, 128 North Brand boulevard, made a trip to the proposed site this morning and found it nearer Glendale than either Los Angeles or Burbank. The company recently purchased ten acres situated just across the Southern Pacific tracks, opposite Vine avenue, and it is announced will build a large factory there at once.

The investment in machinery alone it is stated is estimated at $400,000 and its payroll, annually, for its 250 employes, it is said will total nearly $1,000,000 annually.

"The location of the company will be just opposite the new subdivision which our firm will soon put on the market," said Mr. Grey of the Grey & Ells real estate firm.

"Glendale will profit more by this move on the part of the Braun company than either Los Angeles or Burbank. Incidentally, the U. S. Compression Inner Tube factory site is included on the ground which has recently annexed to Glendale. The city is growing both in territory and in industry."

HOLD BIBLE CONFERENCE

"The Mosaic and Davidic Covenants" will be the subject of Dr. David R. Breed at the Presbyterian Bible Conference. Rev. Thomas E. Stevenson, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Burbank, will preside and a quartet from the Presbyterian church of Eagle Rock will sing. Interesting Facts on Early Schools Given by Records month and allowed $20 a month for the rent of a schoolhouse.

The Common Council of Los Angeles about the same time granted Hugo Overns $50 a month for primary instruction in English, Spanish and French, provided that it was given the privilege of sending to his school free of charge six orphan boys or others whose parents were poor.

Another private school was then opened by the Rev. Henry Waks who acted as school master for the boys while his wife served as school mistress for girls which were allowed to attend school for the first time. They were given $150 a month, but were obliged to pay all expenses.

Major Stephen C. Foster in his inaugural address, 1854, urged the necessity of increased school facilities. He called attention to the fact that the last census showed more than 500 children of the age to attend school, three-fourths of whom had no means of getting an education save that afforded by the public schools and urged the building of two school houses.

First Superintendent

The first superintendent of schools in Los Angeles was this same Mayor Foster, but it is not known that the office carried any salary at that time. Three of the seven members of the common council constituted the board of education: Manuel Requena, Francis Mellus and W. T. B. Sanford. The school marshal was G. W. Cole.

The first regular school house in Los Angeles was built about this time on the northwest corner of Spring and Second streets. This was considered far out in the suburbs and a number of complaints were registered on account of its inconvenience. The edifice was a simple two-story brick building costing $6,000. Its first school master was William A. Wallace, who remained only a few months before going into editorial work. He was succeeded by Miss Louisa Hayes.

Go As You Please

School House No. 2 was built in 1856 on Bath street which is now North Main. This was a two-story, two-room brick structure. It was demolished when the street was extended.

As a historian has remarked: "The early schools seem to have been run on the go as you please principle. The school committee reported having visited the school twice without finding the children assembled."

The first school ordinance of Los Angeles was passed by the common council July 9, 1851. This provided that a sum not exceeding $50 a month should be applied toward the support of any educational institution in the city provided that the rudiments of the English and Spanish languages should be taught.

The first school tax was levied following an ordinance passed August 13, 1852, which provided for a levy of 10 cents on every $100 of property. Previous to this, the school fund had been derived from licenses and fines.

The first school for girls in the vicinity was established, June 11 1853, by Mrs. Adam Bland, wife of a Methodist minister.

Yet They Did Grow

The Los Angeles Star, in 1855, urged the planting of shade trees on school property to prove that vegetation would grow in Southern California soil. William McKee, an educated young Irishman, who was then school master, procured twelve black locust trees for a dollar each. When he used the water from the school water barrel the city water pedlar complained to the common council that the "hombre was wasting water trying to grow trees on the Mesa where any fool might know they wouldn't grow."

However, the trees did grow and the ground squirrels soon tasted the delicious juicy leaves. From that time on Mr. McKee divided his time between the interior of the school and the steps where he mused with a shot gun over his knees waiting for the squirrels to come after another helping of shot.

Nevertheless the trees survived and were cut down in 1884 when the lot was sold to the city for a city hall site.

First Teachers' Institute

The first teachers' institute of Los Angeles county was organized in the old Bath street school, October 31, 1870. The entire teaching force of the city schools then consisted of eight teachers. From the county there were thirty, but all of Orange county was then part of Los Angeles county.

The first high school in the county was established in 1873.

The report of County Superintendent J. F. Burns for the school year ending October 31, 1852, is as follows:

Total number of schools in the county 6, total number of teachers in county 9, total number of children attending school 399, average daily attendance 134, total number of census children between 4 and 18 years 1,522, amount paid teachers by the trustees $1276, amount paid teachers by patrons $766, total teachers' wages $2042, amount spent for building school houses $8230.75, total amount spent on schools of the county $10,272.72.

The report for 1860 showed that there were three grammar and four primary schools in the county with six male and five female teachers, 460 enrolled and an average daily attendance of 140 or less than one-third. For teachers' salaries was expended $4827.

Advantages of Training in Domestic Arts Shown

The permanency of Domestic Arts as a feature in the education of women is assured. It is so vital an expression of her nature that any curriculum which does not include training for the home sphere ignores the very center about which her life revolves. When woman begins to preside over her own home, she soon discovers her limitations if she has not had the advantages of training along the lines of household arts and economics.

The course of study for the girls in the Elementary classes of Domestic Arts consists of the planning and making of undergarments and wash dresses. Samples of different kinds of white cotton materials suitable for undergarments and of different kinds of laces are collected and discussed to familiarize the girls with materials, their widths, prices and names.

Drafting of patterns for these garments is preceded by a discussion of undergarments and their construction, and by practice in free pattern cutting. After the making of the undergarments the girls estimate the number of these articles required each year and their cost.

Samples of table linen are collected and discussed. Study of linen, source, production and manufacture.

The advanced classes in Domestic Arts is a continuation of the work done in the elementary classes of Domestic Arts. A more extensive study of textiles in relation to the choice of materials for the dress is taken up. Emphasis is placed on economy of buying, choice of style, good taste in color and design and suitability.

The study of wool, its sources, production and manufacture is gone into along with the construction of the woolen dress. Good line and color combination in relation to the wearer, and good design in embroidery are taken up. The power to do original thinking is especially sought for in this work.

The millinery class presents another selection in the field of Domestic Arts, which develops the girls' originality and creative ability, by the constructing of a frame for the hat, covering and trimming it.

The purpose of uor Domestic Arts classes is to help establish in the minds of the girls a well balanced attitude toward dress and to help them to realize that beauty in dress is dependent upon their ability to attain a standard by which they may be guided in the artistic, economical and wise selection of the unnumerable common things that their daily life compels them to use.

Domestic Science Course at High School Excellent

"In the Ethics of the Dust" Ruskin says: "Cooking means the knowledge of Medea and Circe, and of Calypso, and of Helen, and of Rebekah and of the Queen of Sheba. It means the knowledge of all herbs, and fruits, and balms, and spices, and of all that is healing and sweet in the fields and groves, and savory in meats; it means carefulness and inventiveness and watchfulness and willingness, and readiness of appliance; it means the economy of your great grandmothers and the science of modern chemists; it means much tasting and no wasting; it means English thoroughness, and French art, and Arabian hospitality; and it means, in fine, to be perfectly and always 'Ladies'-loaf givers."

These words showed that Ruskin considered cooking no homely art and, indeed, it is an art that calls for much knowledge and skill and is worthy of one's best efforts.

A two-year course is given in Domestic Science at our high school. The home is the basis of the work and we try to make the girls realize the importance of home-making in the development of the individual, and the great part the home plays in the formation of the citizenship of the community and of the nation.

The first year work is devoted to the study and preparation of foods. A systematic study is made of the production and manufacture of food materials, their wholesomeness and digestibility, nutritive value and cost—at the same time training is given constantly in neatness, order, foresight and personal responsibility.

The special aims are to teach the scientific principles underlying food preparation, skill in handling food materials and utensils, the preparation and serving of simple meals, the essentials in the selection and purchase of all food materials.

In the second year the study of foods is continued with special emphasis on food values as related to the body. Meals are prepared and served in the model bungalow. A special study of the home and home needs is made in this course. It is offered to train the girl in her part of household and civic work. It aims to give the girl a knowledge of the underlying principles of home-making through the drawing of simple house plans, the study of home furnishing, the making of budgets and the practical management of the home. The girls are taught to estimate values; to decrease expenditures through the wise selection and use of materials; to study the method by which the home can be made wholesome with the least possible expenditure of energy, material, time and money.

Miss Hanson and Miss Helen Hairgrove are the teachers in this department.

Mechanical Arts at Union High School Popular With Pupils

drawings, which, of necessity, precede their exercises in mechanical arts, of which they form a very essential part; third, it gives practice in free hand sketching of objects to be constructed or to be remembered—a function that cannot be dispensed with when you need a ready and effective means of expression and communication in the making of plans, specifications, etc.; fourth, it furnishes practice in decorative design which could be applied in the work shops; fifth, it gives a development course in descriptive geometry by a series of logical steps, which make this a very easy instead of a difficult subject. A thorough knowledge of that language in which the designer and draftsmen express themselves will aid the student in many things where abstract reasoning is necessary.

Machine Shop Development

In machine shop work our aim is to develop practicability. The students being led through a series of successive steps on practical exercises that necessitate the use of several machines which should teach them the fundamental principles of operation of the various machines. They are then given exercises that develop initiative in the application of those principles they should have retained in the previous exercises.

The first year in our machine shop the student receives some training in bench work, which necessitates the use of hammer, chisel, file, surface plate, surface gauge and the many small hand tools, also drill press, shaper and some lathe work.

The second year he will receive practice in cutter grinding and elementary milling machine work. The parts he has been machining he will see assembled later.

The third and fourth years are for advanced lathe and milling machine exercises such as gears, spirals, etc. During the last school year the parts for a small drill press were machined, also a two horse power internal combustion engine was completed and is in operation.

The work of this department serves well for general educational purposes, and the preparation for a mechanical trade. It will readily be seen how closely this subject will co-operate with the shop courses.

Thought Must Come First

Some people have claimed that it is the machine and not the boy that does the work. This will not stand for one moment, for, while it is true that the machine does the work, it is the boy who has charge of the machine and who must see that it does its duty. Then this must necessarily imply an understanding of the construction of the machine, an appreciation of the power that drives it. It presupposes an intelligent, cool, thoughtful, mental attitude. It is here that thought must precede action, otherwise an expensive accident is sure to happen. The machine is made the boy's servant, but it is a servant requiring a careful direction and the most constant and intelligent supervision. This servant under guidance is faithful in the exact performance of its work, but it cannot be trusted out of sight of its master. It is a servant that goes on strike when the master becomes careless or inattentive. Therefore, the supervision required in the machine shop is of the highest educational value. It is here that any lack of mental or physical co-ordination in a boy's constitution is sure to be exposed. In the shops the work is individual and each boy is encouraged to do all he can in a set time, but rather quality than quantity is the chief concern.

Automotive Course Greatest

What is undoubtedly the most phenomenal growth yet recorded is that of the automotive industry. In 1910 there were approximately 800,000 motor cars and during 1920 there were 8,932,458. Total license fees from these cars was $98,000,000. It perhaps is beyond the average person to conceive the great amount of labor that is necessary to build, operate and repair these motor vehicles, and perhaps our thoughts would be—what would become of these people if it were not for the automobile?

Any person having the means may purchase a car and in a few hours of training assume charge of it. His ignorance of that machine will perhaps cost him excessive upkeep charges and grief.

Our automotive course is yet in its experimental stage but by steady progression we anticipate to build up to a point where it will be acknowledged as a most complete department. By that I mean it will include all the necessary branches. The high school boy demands this instruction as part of his general training, also for the immediate benefit in assisting him taking care of the family car. It cannot be said that we are fitting for a trade, but our system of instruction is of a very practical nature and includes the following—so that a student may clearly follow, we teach on the system visualization, that is, by the aid of lantern slides, automotive theory being given on the many parts of the internal combustion motor, safety methods of driving, traffic laws, state laws, care of machines and tools.

Complete Work Report

In the auto shop cars are brought in by the students, the car is at once assigned a young man and his assistants, a complete work report is (after inspection) made out and these embryo mechanics start in with extreme care to dissemble the car, the parts of which are cleaned and packed in a box ready to be locked up until wanted. As the work progresses the instructors demonstrate or explain to the students the why and wherefore and one readily understands why he has such an interested and attentive group.

The night auto course is very popular and has developed rapidly, the men happy in their tasks, assume their duties, which compels them to become thoroughly familiar with the dirtiest of auto parts, with a spirit which speaks but one word, success.

Education of America
Wisdom in Bus Lines
He Who Edits Telegraph
Sincerity Unquestioned

By Gil A. Cowan

AMERICAN Education Week is being observed throughout the nation much in the manner it is evident in Glendale. The Glendale Evening News gladly gives columns of its space to the schools in revealing what they are doing, yet the same has been consistently true almost every day in the year, regardless of education weeks.

In fact, the newspapers of these United States are responsible for the largest share of the public's education. More people will read this column today than any one book in the Glendale libraries during the week. Upwards of 10,000,000 people daily read identical dispatches broadcasted through the country by the International News Service leased wires.

But there are other striking examples of American education made apparent by the week's events. Yesterday the school children held a parade which passed review at Broadway and Brand boulevard. Following precedent, a "flivver" stopped the parade. When the other paraders succeeded in passing the stalled machine, there was a chubby little girl with brown curls hanging over the opened engine hood. Evidently she was contemplating the possible causes of an empty gasoline tank. That was education.

To prove the event was thoroughly American, everybody seemed to know everybody else and the boys would yell at a passing friend: "Hey, Skinny, why ain't yuh got yer car in th' parade?"

Another innovation making publicity for Glendale—the establishment of the Pacific Electric bus line here tomorrow.

It is stated that this is the first time the great interurban line has departed from its policy of "rail service only" in the metropolitan area. It is a good departure and should prove thoroughly profitable.

While "jitneys" have come and gone in Los Angeles to a large extent, this is the first practical move at supplying a service shown necessary in the solution of traffic problems.

In years to come the wisdom of Pacific Electric officials today will be even more apparent than today.

In the observation of its fortieth birthday Sunday the Los Angeles Times gives quite a bit of newspaper history that is worth while reading. It shows how precarious the business is, especially in growing towns. Further, it shows that a publication which succeeds must have more purpose than simply that of circulation or financial gain.

Again, it proves a point of contention in all newspaper offices by definitely establishing the fact that the telegraph editor is the most important position on the staff. He does everything, if the plant is small enough and most plants are that small. It is the telegraph editor who builds the news on the front page every day.

And by telegraph editor, I mean the man who actually edits the telegraph copy and writes the headlines therefor. He may be the managing editor, in other places the city editor does this work and in Kansas City and a half hundred other towns, the telegraph editors dawdle around and let someone else edit the stuff, so the credit there should be collective.

News editors may come and managing editors may go, but the telegraph operator and telegraph editor can issue an interesting newspaper in the deadest town that ever lived, if the least semblance of a printing office remains.

In Glendale, however, telegraphic news is most important and least necessary for The Glendale Evening News. Commuters are surfeited with the columns and columns of dispatches they find in the metropolitan editions.

What they want is the important events of the day done up in a small package like "The World's News in Brief" column. Then they want to learn of events in this community. That is why The Glendale Evening News likely has the greatest concentrated circulation of any suburban newspaper in southern California. It prints the home town news, thrills with community spirit and stands alone in a remarkable policy of progress.

"I believe The Glendale Evening News has done more for the upbuilding of this community, through its consistent boosting, than any other one factor," declared a retired business man who has been engaged successfully in six different lines here.

Now this man had no cause to say it for he seldom favored this paper and certainly has been favored less than his words would imply. But he has been noticing and he knows—as every other business man should know—that the home town paper cements public opinion, carries a message of courage, chronicles the march of progress and through its advertising columns stimulates business which otherwise would not be.

You can afford to subscribe to The Glendale Evening News, the soul of which is not sold to Los Angeles interests; you will get returns on money invested in advertising placed in a paper whose sincerity is not questioned.

The earth makes a complete revolution around the sun in one sidereal year.

Eileen Percy Stars in Fox Production on Glendale Screen

At the Glendale Theatre the chief attraction today is "Hickville to Broadway," a William Fox production in which the star is beautiful Eileen Percy. The star we know—and always enjoy. The photoplay, an original by Carl Harbaugh, who is also the director, is described as a sentimental comedy of village and city life. The story opens in the former and moves to the latter. It treats of a young girl's conspiracy with friends to try out the moral quality of her village fiance by following him, incog., to the White Light section of Broadway when he visits that alluring thoroughfare for the first time.

William Scott, well known here, is Miss Percy's leading man, and also in the cast is Rosemary Theby, as well as others well known in the Fox constellation.

"On Location," a Rolin comedy satire which will be enjoyed by followers of the films, adds spice to the bill, while International News and the final episode of "The Diamond Queen" with Eileen Sedgwick complete the offering for the day. Tomorrow Glendale will see its own Bebe Daniels in "The Speed Girl" as the feature attraction.

Some men manage to dodge enough work to keep a dozen people busy.

Faith would have an easy time of it if doubt didn't camp on its trail.
